OAKFIELD CAPITAL PARTNERS PROVIDES GROWTH CAPITAL FOR LONDON DOCTORS CLINIC

Oakfield Capital Partners is pleased to announce an equity investment in London Doctors Clinic, a chain of private clinics operating in Greater London. The company provides affordable and accessible access to the GP across eleven clinics. LDC's services include consultations, health screens, blood tests, diagnostics and some secondary care. The investment will support the company's growth plans to become a national broader healthcare services platform in the UK.

Established by Dr Seth Rankin in 2014, the company started by providing private GP consultations in Central London. Since then the company has increased its physical presence to eleven clinics, successfully launched a range of services for corporate clients and developed the capability to provide video consultations. The recent secondary service additions include mental health consultations and orthopedic work. The company delivers its services to individual patients, corporates and the insurance market.

Dave Mezher, CEO, said, "Oakfield's investment will allow the company to deliver its exciting growth plans. The business is well placed to deliver affordable high-quality healthcare to private patients and corporate clients in the UK".

Oakfield Partner, Alexander Bezugly said, "We are delighted with the progress achieved by LDC since commercial launch of the business in 2015. Our investment backs a management team led by Dave Mezher in its drive to realize the company's full potential".
